

CUTTER IT JOURNAL

FORMERLY AMERICAN PROGRAMMER
THE JOURNAL OF INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY MANAGEMENT

March 2001, Vol. 14, No. 3

Developing Wireless Distributed Applications

Introduction

Ken Orr, Guest Editor

2

Ken Orr is a principal researcher with The Ken Orr Institute, a business technology research organization. Previously, he was an affiliate professor and director of the Center for the Innovative Application of Technology at Washington University in St. Louis, Missouri, USA. Mr. Orr is an internationally recognized expert on technology transfer, software engineering, information architecture, and data warehousing. He is the author of Structured Systems Development, Structured Requirements Definition, and The One Minute Methodology.

Now Playing at a Theater Near You: Wireless Applications

Ian Hayes

4

Wireless Application Architectures for Business:

Key Implementation Considerations

Andrew Robertson

10

Location-Based Services:

The Pot of Gold for Business in the Mobile Internet

Brenda Lewis

22

Creating Sustainable Wireless Applications

Brian C. Newman

28

Wireless and XML

Frank P. Coyle

34

CUTTER IT JOURNAL

THE JOURNAL OF INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY MANAGEMENT

REPRINT

Location-Based Services: The Pot of Gold for Business in the Mobile Internet

by Brenda Lewis

Reprints available upon request:
blewis@transactionsmarketing.com